

CIFOR-GIZ Workshop on FLR

Accelerating Restoration of Degraded Forest Landscapes: The role of tenure security and local forest governance in catalyzing global restoration initiatives

Bonn, Germany — 3rd November 2017

Address: Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH, Mäanderbau, Friedrich-Ebert-Allee 40, 53113 Bonn
Venue: Saal Donau

Morning session:

09:00 - 09:30 Registration in entrance lobby of the GIZ Building

**coffee provided**

---

09:30 - 09:45 Welcoming remarks and overview of the day by Lorenz Petersen (GIZ) and Steven Lawry (CIFOR)

---

09:45 - 11:15 Presentation by CIFOR scientists

Global review and country-level assessments of forest landscape restoration (FLR) initiatives and the interplay with tenure, multi-level governance and community-level impacts

Global overview of FLR policy and practice

- Manuel Guariguata, Principal Scientist and Team Leader, Forest Landscape Restoration Research

Tenure and governance as factors in FLR

- Rebecca McLain, Portland State University and CIFOR Research Consultant
- Steven Lawry, Director of Equity, Gender and Tenure Research

Gender and tenure in FLR programming

- Bimbika Sijapati Basnett, Scientist/Coordinator of Gender Research

Summary of lessons learned, policy recommendations and a Theory of Change for FLR, tenure and governance

- CIFOR team

[There will be a brief facilitated Q&A between each of the first 3 presentations, and a general discussion after the final presentation]

---

11:15 - 11:30	Coffee break
11:30 - 12:30	Leaders of FLR initiatives speak to their experiences in addressing tenure and governance issues in program implementation <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Jared Messinger, Manager, Global Restoration Initiative, World Resources Institute</li><li>• Susanne Winter, Director, Forest Policy, World Wildlife Fund, Germany</li><li>• Elisabeth Hoch, Senior Advisor, Forests, Biodiversity, Agriculture—Department for Climate, Rural Development, Infrastructure, GIZ</li></ul>
12:30 - 13:00	Facilitated summary discussion of key ideas and lessons learned moderated by Elke Matthaei (GIZ) and Bimbika Sijapati Basnett (CIFOR)
13:00 - 14:00	Lunch in Saal Donau

---

Afternoon working session

14:00 - 15:30	Planning CIFOR country-level research in 2018 Invited participants will join a working session to discuss draft CIFOR proposals to carry out research on tenure and governance issues in restoration in 2018, including in specific countries CIFOR and GIZ are considering as promising candidates for study. Provisionally, the plan is to carry out case studies in 4-5 countries that have made commitments under one of the major global restoration initiatives. Participants will be asked to comment critically on aspects of research design and offer suggestions of country programs that could make best use of research insights. Participants will join breakout groups organized by topic and/or countries.
15:30 - 16:00	Coffee break
16:00 - 17:00	Next steps Participants will discuss and agree on follow-up activities, including future meetings, protocols for sharing information, possible formation of a community of practice and strategies for engaging other partners at various levels.
17:30	An early dinner will be hosted by GIZ, allowing participants to exchange ideas and contacts and to accommodate those who have to depart Bonn early.